

One-two and three

How it works

Blue player in the centre of the circle starts by passing the ball to any red player around the outside of the playing area.

At the same time, red player with the ball on the outside of the circle passes to any other available red player.

Blue player follows their pass to receive the ball back from the red player on the outside of the circle.

Other red player continues to pass the ball to another player around the edge of the playing area.

Possible changes

Add another blue player into the middle of the circle or an extra ball passed around the outside, or both, dependent on ability.
